Britain to Test 1st Atom Bomb

LONDON, Sunday (AP). — Britain will test her first atom-bomb in Australia this year, the Prime Minister's office announced today. This announcement gave no specific date for the test.

The test will be conducted "in close cooperation with the Government of Australia," the announcement said, but the weapon itself will be one produced in Britain. It gave no site for the test, but said it will be "conducted in conditions which will ensure that there will be no danger whatever from radioactivity to the health of people and animals in the Commonwealth."

Australia is suitable for such a testing because of her vast central desert, where guided missiles have been tested for years.

Outstrip Schedules
The announcement from 10 Downing Street buttressed indications that Britain's atomic program is outstripping the schedules under the impetus of the Prime Minister.

Last Wednesday the Supply Minister, the Government department responsible for developing the bomb, said, "The program is progressing faster than expected." The reason: "Because work is being done on a much larger scale than was anticipated."

Mr. Churchill, who frequently needed the Labour Government for not moving fast enough on the bomb, gave his old friend and ally a boost in the "sympathy and affection" he received from the public at the time of the death of his "dear husband, a great and noble King."

She told them that her daughter, the new Queen, "in the great and lonely station to which she had been called," would need their protection and their love.

In Lahore, Australia, today more than 1,000 people attended a memorial service for King George VI in Parliament House.

Queen Mother Sends Message to Mourners
LONDON, Sunday (Reuter). — The Queen Mother today thanked a multitude of people in all parts of the world for the "sympathy and affection" she received from them at the time of the death of her "dear husband, a great and noble King."

She told them that her daughter, the new Queen, "in the great and lonely station to which she had been called," would need their protection and their love.

In Lahore, Australia, today more than 1,000 people attended a memorial service for King George VI in Parliament House.

SERVICE FOR KING GEORGE AT JAFFA
JAFFA, Sunday—Tribute to the memory of King George VI was paid by the Rev. Scott Morrison at a service in St. Peter's Church here this morning.

Crowds gathered outside the church to watch the arrival of Mr. Weismann, the Diplomatic Corps, the chief of staff, the Director of the Foreign Ministry, Members of the Knesset, senior government officials, as well as members of the British Community.

On a number of buildings, the national flag of Britain and Israel were flown at half-mast.

The lessons at the service were read by Mr. John E. Chadwick, First Secretary of the British Legation, and Mr. O.C.W. Fuhrman, the Australian Minister, Sir Francis Evans was absent owing to illness.

At the first time in the church, the gathering sang "God Save the Queen" at the end of the service.

Mrs. Roosevelt Tours Welfare Institutions
Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt last night visited Daganah where a reception was given in her honor by the Regional Council. She was welcomed by Mr. Yosef Baratz, of Daganah, and by Mr. Abraham Haft, the Council chairman.

Tomorrow, Mrs. Roosevelt will tour Galilee. In the morning, Mrs. Roosevelt visited a military hospital and later went to Raanana where she visited the Kfar Batya children's village operated by the Mizrachi Women's Organization of America and the Youth Aliyah Children's Home at Kfar Saba.

Mrs. Roosevelt had lunch at Beth Berl in Kfar Saba and chatted with students at the university. She was reported to have said, "I am sure that if the Arabs would cooperate with Israel in accordance with United Nations decisions, the difficult problem of Palestinian refugees could be solved."

From there she drove to the WIZO youth village of Hadassim where she was received by Mr. Moshe Kol, head of the Youth Aliyah, and by WIZO representatives. Her next stop on her trip to the north was at Kfar Hama where she visited the Malbon old age home.

On the face of it, there would seem to be a fair case for the new proposals. It is difficult to see what other measures could be taken by this government at this time without at least equal risks and probably worse. But everything depends on the firmness and efficiency with which the new measures are applied. Bureaucratic confusion and the ineffectiveness of the public from co-operation to resistance. Above all, the people must learn to have confidence in their government and the government to take the people into their confidence.

Sharett Reports To Cabinet On Reparation Talks

The Government yesterday heard a report from Mr. Moshe Sharett, the Foreign Minister, on his talks in Paris and London. The Foreign Minister returned by air at noon and drove to Jerusalem to attend the Cabinet meeting.

On his arrival at Lydda airport he said that direct negotiations with German representatives on Israel's claims for reparations would begin in a few weeks. Full accord was reached at the Paris talks between the Israeli Government and representatives of Jewish Organizations abroad, he added.

The Foreign Minister said no decision had been reached yet on the time and place for the negotiations, and that the Israeli delegation had not yet been chosen. He added that there has been no contact between the Government and the Germans. He also denied reports that Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, would represent Israel in the talks. The Foreign Minister would be represented by Israel's Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, had covered a variety of subjects with regard to the Middle East Command. Mr. Sharett said "I believe there will be no progress in this matter, until after the NATO conference in Lisbon."

Revised Communist Version Accepted
PANMUNJOM, Sunday (Reuter). — The U.N. today accepted a Communist draft agenda for a high-level peace conference within three months of a cease-fire — provided the Communists accepted the Allied interpretation of it.

The Communists asked until tomorrow to study the interpretation. Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate, said he specifically interpreted the Communist proposal for discussion of the withdrawal of "foreign forces" from Korea to mean "non-Korean forces." He also made it clear the U.N. wanted the conference confined to Korean matters.

The revised Communist agenda said the governments concerned should decide the scope of the conference, and that on its agenda should be the "withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea, the peaceful settlement of the Korean question, etcetera." The word "etcetera" had replaced the word "other questions related to peace in Korea" originally put forward.

At an armistice supervision subcommittee today the Communists said the U.N. had no justification for rejecting yesterday the nomination of Russia as a member of a neutral inspection team after an armistice. They asked if the U.N. had any opinions on the matter. The reply was "no," and the meeting adjourned.

At the prisoner exchange subcommittee the Communists agreed to submit revised proposals "in the interests of progress."

Two Delegations
Dr. Gloria Josephthal of the Jewish Agency Executive, who arrived in the same plane from Paris, where he attended the reparations talks with representatives of Jewish organizations, said that two Jewish delegations would be represented in the talks with Bonn: an Israeli Government delegation will negotiate for reparations, and a group representing the Jewish organization will file claims for individuals.

The Cabinet's Communiqué stated: "At its weekly meeting, the Cabinet decided to send to the U.N. Service Unit which will be presented to the Knesset shortly."

Communist Victory Surprises India

NEW DELHI, Sunday (Reuter). — The emergence of the Communist Party as India's second political party has been the main surprise of the Indian elections. Although, with only few results to come, the Congress Party has again captured an absolute majority in the Central Parliament, the Communists have managed to win at least 27 seats out of 488.

Throughout Southern India the Communists, most of whose leaders were forced to go underground only a short while ago, pulled very heavily in Hyderabad, the Communist candidate polled 78 per cent of the vote, and in some 200,000 ballots, thus topping the 230,000 Premier Nehru received in his constituency.

Fatemi Assailant Says Bullet Was For Mossadegh

TEHRAN, Sunday. — Mossadegh Rafti, 15-year-old member of the Fidayan Islam terrorist organization who on Friday shot Dr. Hussein Fatemi, today told the police that he had been assigned to assassinate Premier Mossadegh and Justice Minister Amir Alaike.

"I could not find Alaike, so I looked for Fatemi for two days," he was quoted as telling the police.

The Fidayan Islam once backed Dr. Mossadegh and later vowed vengeance on him and members of his Government for killing their leader, Navaab Safavi.

Fatemi, former Deputy Premier, was quoted by his own newspaper, "The New Iran," today as saying in a statement: "I shot him in the back. You see his bullet did not kill him."

Dr. Fatemi's doctor said he was fatally out of danger.

Mossadegh, reports here today said that intervention by the Persian Senate has averted — possibly only temporarily — a breakdown in negotiations between the International Bank and the Government.

Senators said a delegation to Premier Mossadegh's house on hearing reports yesterday afternoon of an imminent breakdown in the talks. They were informed by Mossadegh that he saw "no hope" of a settlement, and while he would not take any action to persuade the mission to stay on, he offered the Senators themselves to undertake the task.

The Senators called on the mission yesterday afternoon, and as a result the mission was reported to have agreed to continue negotiations. There was no indication on what point the talks were stalled, but information received here today suggested that the question of trusteeship for running the Abadan refinery — insisted on by the Bank — and the sale price of oil were the main stumbling blocks.

Big 3 Reach Agreement On Military, Political Relations

LONDON, Sunday (AP). — In two meetings lasting more than five hours, U.S., British and French leaders made considerable progress in working out future Allied political and military relations, official sources said.

The following communiqué was issued following the meeting between Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman:

"The three Foreign Ministers held two meetings at the Foreign Office today and discussed the German contractual relationship and related questions. They will meet with the German Federal Chancellor (Dr. Konrad Adenauer) tomorrow morning."

The Foreign Ministers, "eliminated most of their remaining differences over the contractual treaties with West Germany to replace the occupation regime, usually well-informed sources said here tonight."

The three Ministers were said to be ready now to present a more or less united front when they are joined tomorrow morning by Adenauer for further talks.

They are substantially agreed on their policy towards the remaining differences over the contractual treaties with West Germany to replace the occupation regime, usually well-informed sources said here tonight."

IN last week's Knesset debate on the social insurance bill, all parties congratulated the Minister of Labour on his initiative in laying the foundation of the welfare state. Opinions differed as to the scope of the scheme and the means of implementation; but the basic question of whether the country can in fact afford to launch a scheme of social security was only gingerly handled. No member party wanted to be the first to oppose the beginnings of Israel's Beveridge Scheme.

In the preliminary debate, doubts as to our ability to pay for social insurance were met by two main arguments: in the first place it was stressed that during the next five or six years the old-age insurance scheme would not call for the expenditure of large funds, but would help to accumulate considerable sums in the hands of the insurance authority. It would therefore act as an anti-inflationary measure. Secondly, it was maintained that we already pay considerable sums for social insurance, and that the first stages of the plan would therefore only mean relatively small additional payments.

But both these arguments demand closer examination. The day after the transfer of the bill to committee, the fight against inflation took on an entirely different aspect. With the government's New Economic Policy we are headed for a period of steeply rising prices. Money will become very scarce, and employers and workers will be forced to examine their budgets very much more closely. It is doubtful whether the economy will be able to spare many millions of pounds for an insurance scheme, for to argue that the first stage of the plan will "only" mean the expenditure of a few more million pounds a year must be considered alongside the government's pledge of a genuine balance of its three budgets. Every million devoted to social security — and the State will have to contribute to an insurance scheme no matter how high the payments of employers and workers — must be diverted from some other item in the budget.

Even in a precarious economic situation, it is argued, social insurance and especially care of the aged, mothers and orphans should have priority, and reductions must be made in other directions. This argument is impressive and almost unanswerable, if the immediate creation of the welfare state is accepted. But those who say that we must retrench to cover additional expenditure for social insurance, must clearly indicate where such retrenchment should take place. Even in its first stages, proposals for national insurance cannot be treated separately from budgeting problems. The new bill passed the first reading on the eve of the tabling of the new budget. It may take on an entirely new aspect in Committee where the Prime Minister's promise of a new budget policy will have to be taken into account.

KEEPING POSTED

ART, we have been given to understand, knows no national boundaries, and this must be the reason why that pulsating piece of technicolour, "Samson and Delilah," has been showing to packed houses for the past three weeks in Amman as well as in Jerusalem. The rough stuff is applauded with equal fervour on either side of the border and "A-Diff" has commented that this seems about the only thing Israel and Jordan have in common at present. In Egypt the film was banned last summer, as being tendentiously pro-Israel and anti-Pharisees, but then of course the Egyptians have the Gaza population to worry about, and don't want any nervousness there. In London, we regret to say, the film was taken off after three days' run because the audiences laughed uproariously in all the wrong places.

WE have the following two versions of the film: one in which Samson is a Jew, and one in which he is a Christian. The former version, which is the one shown in Jerusalem, is a bit of a mess, and the latter version, which is the one shown in Amman, is a bit of a mess. The film is a mess, and the mess is a mess.

Yesterday's Press Review: Economic War Depends On Faith in Govt.

Commenting again on the Government's new economic programme, "Haaretz" (Independent) urged that since so much depends on public confidence in the Government, the coalition be broadened. "Haaretz" (General Zionist) wrote that private building will continue despite all regulations and restrictions, "Haaretz" (Zionist) wrote that the Government's economic policy is a lowering of the standard of living.

Despite its two-page format "Davar" yesterday devoted a couple of columns to a letter from Mapam M.R. David Lichinsky which he claimed was rejected by "Al Hahishimim" (Mapam). Symptomatic of the internal conflict within Mapam, Mr. Lichinsky had noted in a recent Knesset speech that even the progressive elements in Arab countries were not free of nationalist prejudice. He pointed for corroboration to a speech by the Egyptian Foreign Minister which had been circulated by the Egyptian delegation to the last Peace Congress. Despite the speech's many attacks on Israel, a few days later, Dr. Mostafa Shams replied, asserting that the progressive elements in the Arab countries were openly disassociating themselves from anti-Israel nationalism. He gave no details.

"Haaretz" (World Mizrahi) noted that the first stage of the plan will "only" mean the expenditure of a few more million pounds a year must be considered alongside the government's pledge of a genuine balance of its three budgets. Every million devoted to social security — and the State will have to contribute to an insurance scheme no matter how high the payments of employers and workers — must be diverted from some other item in the budget.

At the Cinema

EVERY Girl Should be Married (Orion, 12th), is a sparkling comedy about a pedantic (Cary Grant), a confirmed bachelor, chased by a lovely satirist (Diana Lynn) who uses her millionaire boss (Frankie Tones) as well as a fictitious boy friend, "old Joe," to make the doctor jealous.

Fine Choreography
 "THE TOAST OF NEW ORLEANS" (Eden, 12th), held for the second week, is a charming picture with exquisite choreography by Eugene Loring, starring Mario Lanza and Kathryn Grayson.

Touch Guys
 "NORTH SEA SHORES" (Eden, 12th) is a movie about some tough characters in the early atmosphere of a waterfront cafe, including (Shirley Winters) whose legs as well as voice are reminiscent of Marlene Dietrich. Her partner, a seaman, is on the screen time-time in the last scene at Carnegie Hall.
